EDITORIAL COMMENT

I have the pleasure to introduce to the reading public to Volume 2, Issue 1, 2024 Edition of the Association of Environmental Lawyers of Nigeria Journal of Multidisciplinary and Current Studies. This edition is a testament to the Association's commitment to promoting scholarship, research, and discourse on environmental law and related fields.

This edition features 17 articles that showcase the diversity and richness of environmental law and its intersections with other disciplines. The articles cover a wide range of topics, including environmental law, maritime law, international law, renewable energy, WTO, divestment by oil companies, the common heritage of humankind, disposal of diapers, climate change, combating corruption, land acquisition, and the Petroleum Industry Act 2021.

The articles in this edition demonstrate the complexity and nuances of environmental law and its applications in various contexts. They offer insightful analyses, critiques, and recommendations that contribute to the advancement of environmental law and policy in Nigeria and beyond. We are grateful to the authors who have contributed to this edition and to the reviewers who have helped to ensure the quality and integrity of the articles. We also appreciate the support of our editorial team and the Association of Environmental Lawyers of Nigeria.

We hope that this edition of the Journal will be a valuable resource for scholars, researchers, policymakers, and practitioners in the field of environmental law and related disciplines. We look forward to continuing to promote scholarship and discourse on environmental law and policy through future editions of the Journal. However, all views expressed here are strictly those of the authors and not the views of the Editorial Board.

Once again, we welcome you to this edition of the Journal, and we hope that you will find the articles informative, thought-provoking, and useful in your research.
